For apartment communities

Every unit key, master and vendor, accounted for.

Keasy turns your leasing office key box into a system that knows where every key is, who has it and when it is due back.

Sound familiar?

The sign-out sheet says it came back. It isn't on the hook.

A vendor "dropped it off." Nobody knows where.

A missing master can mean rekeying a whole building.

How it works

1. Tag every key
   A small NFC tag shows a 3-digit code, never the unit number.
2. Tap, grab, go
   Staff sign in at the kiosk, and it shows exactly which hook the key is on.
3. Know at a glance
   See every key that is out, who has it and when it is due back.

Why teams choose Keasy

- Masters stay masters
  Restricted keys need a manager's PIN, the grand master a witness.
- Vendors on the record
  Vendors never log in. Staff hand keys over with a due-back time.
- No resident data
  Keys are tracked by unit. Resident names and contacts are never stored.
- Lost keys stay lost
  Report a lost key and its tag is retired for good, with kiosk warnings.
- Works with your box
  Keep your cabinet, drawer or pegboard. It runs on a standard tablet.
- Turn and amenity keys
  Turn keys, pool gates, clubhouses and mailboxes too.

Where it pays for itself

Fewer rekeys	Hours back	A clear record
Keys get found before a lock change.	No more hunting or calling vendors.	Every checkout has a name and a time.
